Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement between Microsoft, the DOJ and the nine states is very fair. Microsoft pays a large price but the greater good is done by providing the "at risk" to have computers and have a chance to pull themselves up and be part of the mainstream.

The only complaints from consumers are from the Class Action attorneys that want a quick buck. The main complaints are from the competitors who are unable to compete in the marketplace. The courts should not be the place to rectify poor management, the marketplace should. So continue to fight strongly for this settlement.
